

COVID CITIES

SATURDAY 7:00PM OCT 9 2021 | SHORT FILMS

When the global pandemic struck, many people declared the death of the city. But what about the many people who faithfully remained in the city? They are fighting to create something new and meaningful for a post-covid world. This short film series begins with esteemed architects reflecting on meta themes of cities, then goes to a small tactical urbanism demonstration, then to a small group of neighbors who helped each other stay fed during the snowy season, a fictional imagination about a covid city, and a bicyclist's many journeys through seemingly emptied-out city centers. Lastly we end in Washington D.C. at The Market, a touching featurette about several small business owners who worked hard to keep serving their customers in the midst of chaos.

FILMS IN THIS SCREENING

Recovering Space - Bonnie Dempsey

Bloordale Beach - Beth Warrian

Fill the Need - Amelia Ponirakis

Amnesha - Taryn Edmonds

60 Day Cycle - Darcy Wittenburg, Colin Jones